

WARREN CAN BE REJECTED BY U. S. SENATE TODAY

BITTERNESS MARKS TALK BEFORE VOTE

Fight-to-the-Finish Was Waged in Chamber During Debate

BULLETIN.
By Associated Press Leased Wire
Washington, March 16.—The Senate today rejected for a second time the nomination of Charles B. Warren to be attorney general.

The vote was 46 to 39, compared with the tie vote 40 to 40 on which the nomination was first rejected last Tuesday.

President Coolidge has announced he will offer Mr. Warren a recess appointment, but the nominee has not indicated whether he will accept.

Washington, March 16.—In a fiery debate, freighted with the accumulated bitterness of a long history-making struggle, the Senate today approached a second vote on the rejected nomination of Charles B. Warren to be attorney general with both sides convinced the outcome would be another rejection.

President Coolidge's announcement that he would offer a recess appointment to Mr. Warren if he again fails of confirmation, fired the opposition with a new and flaming determination and inspired the democrats and republican insurgents to direct many of their fiercest thrusts at the President himself.

Speeches Are Limited
Two republican senators, Gillette of Massachusetts, former speaker of the House, and Goff, of West Virginia, a former assistant attorney general, opened the debate of Mr. Warren and the President while Senator Borah, republican, Idaho and Reed, democrat, Missouri, took up the leadership of the opposition, fighting for defeat of the nomination. Under an agreement previously made, the speeches were limited and a vote was to be taken during the afternoon.

Senator Goff praised the record made by Mr. Warren as a practicing lawyer, as a representative of the government in arbitration cases and as ambassador to Japan and to Mexico. The attempt of the senate "for partisan reasons" to prevent the President from selecting his cabinet by his own liking was assailed by Senator Gillette.

Harries Back to Webster
After Senator Reed had reviewed once more the "sugar" connection with the sugar industry and had renewed his charges of an attempt to violate the anti-trust law, Senator Borah harked back to Daniel Webster in a defense of the Senate's unqualified legal and moral right to block nominations.

"I would not at all challenge the integrity of the President of the United States," said Senator Borah. "I expect him, knowing him as I do, to do his duty to meet his obligations, and if I did not do that here I would forfeit the respect of the President of the United States."

Referring to opposition to former Attorney General Stone to be an associate justice of the Supreme Court, Senator Gillette said there was the "desire to wound without the courage to strike."

Quoted N. Y. Times.
Senator Reed in a speech read from a New York Times editorial asking what the country would think of a senate that swallowed Harry Daugherty and strains at Charles B. Warren.

"It is because we swallowed Harry Daugherty," returned Senator Reed, "that we are straining at Warren."

Senator Bruce, democrat, Maryland, walked over and whispered to Senator Reed to speak louder. Senator Reed replied:

"I am speaking loud enough to be heard all over the block. Keep quiet and listen."

Senator Reed went over again and charged he has brought out against Mr. Warren, reading from the record of the government's "sugar" trust case, and pointing out the relationship Mr. Warren had with the sugar companies. Senator Reed contended the nominee was an integral part of a plan to control the sugar industry in violation of the Sherman law.

Senator Gillette, republican, Massachusetts, took up the defense of Mr. Warren and declared "an extraordinary proceeding" that a President was denied the right to choose a member of his own cabinet.

Senator Reed, republican, Michigan, Mr. Warren's home state, interrupted to suggest the Michigan house members did not want Mr. Warren confirmed.

THE WEATHER

HOW MUCH YOU GET OUT OF YOUR WORK DEPENDS GREATLY ON HOW MUCH YOU PUT INTO IT—

MONDAY, MARCH 16, 1925

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Illinois: Partly overcast tonight and Tuesday; possibly becoming unsettled Tuesday; warmer tonight.

Chicago and vicinity: Partly overcast tonight and Tuesday; possibly becoming unsettled by Tuesday night; warmer tonight with lowest temperature considerably above freezing; moderate to fresh southerly winds.

Wisconsin: Partly overcast tonight and Tuesday; not much change in temperature.

strategy chiefly to President Coolidge's challenge of a recess appointment for Mr. Warren in case of a second rejection of his nomination.

It was their purpose also to attempt to hold the Senate in session long enough to give the President, as stated by Senator Robinson, democratic leader, ample opportunity to submit another name for the office.

President Coolidge in re-submitting the nomination, made it clear that he desired a full presentation of Mr. Warren's qualifications, but it appeared that in its final stages the debate would shift largely from this phase of the constitutional questions which democratic senators insist have been raised by the executive's pronouncement.

Could Draw No Salary.
Whether Mr. Warren would accept a recess appointment was a matter on which there has been no information.

Should he do so, he could draw no salary until confirmed by the Senate at a later session, although it is contended he could continue to hold office, not only throughout the recess but until the end of the session of Congress which opens next December.

The language of the constitution on this point is as follows:
"The President shall have power to fill up all vacancies that may happen during the recess of the Senate, by granting commissions, which shall expire at the end of their next session."

When the session was called to order nearly the entire membership was in the chamber. Those present included a number of senators who had been away when the roll was called last Tuesday. Among them was Senator La Follette just back from a vacation in Florida.

New Senator Opens Debate.
The debate was opened by Senator Goff, republican, West Virginia, who in his maiden speech in the Senate, said he would be derelict if he did not defend a man so fit for the office as Mr. Warren.

Citing his services in the Bering Sea seal fisheries case as an example of the nominee's legal ability, he declared Mr. Warren was not employed in that case as a clerk, as his opponents had charged, but as one of the legal counsel.

The West Virginia senator also pointed to Mr. Warren's appearance at The Hague in the North Atlantic fisheries case as another illustration.

Mr. Warren's diplomatic work in Japan resulting in cancellation of the Lansing-Ishii agreement and his service in Mexico as ambassador, were cited by Senator Goff to be in themselves proof of his ability.

He read a letter from President Harding to Mr. Warren praising him for his services in Japan.

Senator Goff presented a letter from President Coolidge to the Senate congratulating him on services in Mexico, which characterized them as constituting a "notable achievement."

Senator Goff added:
"Are all lawyers expected to hold contracts with all the different experiences through which they pass?"

Senator Reed, Missouri, agreed with the West Virginia senator that Mr. Warren "had been faithful to his trust" and added "but his trust was the sugar trust."

Senator Bruce, democrat, Maryland, walked over and whispered to Senator Reed to speak louder. Senator Reed replied:

"I am speaking loud enough to be heard all over the block. Keep quiet and listen."

Senator Reed went over again and charged he has brought out against Mr. Warren, reading from the record of the government's "sugar" trust case, and pointing out the relationship Mr. Warren had with the sugar companies.

Senator Gillette, republican, Massachusetts, took up the defense of Mr. Warren and declared "an extraordinary proceeding" that a President was denied the right to choose a member of his own cabinet.

Senator Reed, republican, Michigan, Mr. Warren's home state, interrupted to suggest the Michigan house members did not want Mr. Warren confirmed.

CONGRESS CANNOT DELVE INTO BOOKS OF PRIVATE FIRMS

Supreme Court Decrees Important Findings in Mooted Case.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Washington, March 16.—Congress cannot collect by access to books and papers in the hands of private firms through a federal investigating body all the information desired for consideration in the formulation of a legislative policy, the Supreme Court held today.

The court sustained a decision of the lower court in three cases from Maryland brought by the Federal Trade Commission against Hammond, Snyder & Co., the Baltimore Grain Company, and the H. C. Jones Company.

Recent congressional investigations had resulted in such strenuous challenges of the right of legislative committees and other government agencies to inquire into the affairs of corporations and individuals, that the subject has become one of the most important the Supreme Court was called upon to decide during the present session.

The question reached the court in several phases. In three cases from Maryland brought by the Federal Trade Commission against Hammond, Snyder & Co., the Baltimore Grain Company and the H. C. Jones Company, the issue was the power of the Senate to gather information through the commission concerning the grain trade for use in the drafting of legislation.

The issue squarely presented was whether Congress, to procure the information it required, might constitutionally confer upon an administrative body authority to compel corporations to furnish it.

In the Clare Furnace case the question was whether Congress, in conferring authority upon the same commission to gather information regarding the production, distribution, manufacture, storage and distribution of food-stuffs and other necessities of life, had conveyed sufficiently broad power upon the commission to enable it to compel corporations to furnish it.

Challenged Authority.
The most direct challenge of the authority which Congress had exercised reached the court in the government's appeal in a case to compel M. S. Daugherty to produce records of the Midland National Bank called for by the Senate.

It is expected that the Harry F. Sinclair contempt case, now pending in the courts of the District of Columbia, will reach the Supreme Court at the present term.

Oregon's Compulsory School Law Before Highest Court

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Washington, March 16.—The compulsory education law of Oregon, requiring that after September of next year all children between 8 and 16, with a few exceptions, shall attend public schools, was reached in the Supreme Court today for oral argument in two cases brought by the state to have set aside the law.

In argument prepared for today counsel for the state pointed out that in the lower court the challenge of the law was based upon the fact that the rights of schools incorporated by the state, contending the injunction has been based largely upon assumption that the property rights of the parochial and private schools granted by the state would be impaired by the requirement that children should attend public schools.

A new proposal, if founded upon this unwritten understanding upon Secretary Kellogg and Mr. Chamberlain will be welcomed by British officials and given their active support, it is declared.

Small Asks Return of Assailant of Young Lady

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Springfield, Ill., March 16.—A requisition on the governor of Kentucky, for the return to Chicago from Louisville, Ky., of one Athlete B. McDowell, who is charged with assaulting Mildred Hall, 3206 South State street, Chicago, March 6, with intent to kill her, was issued here today.

Governor Simon honored a requisition for the return to Cincinnati, Ohio, of Albert E. Sotter, former secretary treasurer of the Ohio Refining Co., who is charged with embezzling $23,000 from the company. He is under arrest in LaSalle county. Mrs. Hall is an aunt of Mrs. Will Fisher of this city, and also an aunt of Harry and Elizabeth McCann of Dixon.

1200 Illinois Miners to be Out of Work Tuesday

By Associated Press Leased Wire
West Frankfort, Ill., March 16.—Twelve hundred men will be thrown out of work Tuesday when the Chicago, Wilmington & Franklin Coal Co., indefinitely suspends operations at its coal mine here, said to be the largest in the state.

About half the mines in this district have closed recently because of slackened demand.

Local Assessments Must be Paid Soon

City Clerk Blake Grover announced today a ten day period remaining for the payment of local assessments for improvements made in the city. At the end of this time the delinquent assessments will be levied against the county treasurer and penalty is then added for non-payment.

Funeral of Charles Franklin Wednesday

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Harrisburg, Ill., March 16.—Clyde Roper, 23, a Big Four switchman, was shot and instantly killed and Claude Kaid, of Eldorado, was probably fatally wounded early today when three men held up the six participants in an alleged gambling game at the home of Mrs. David Kelly, 318 W. Chamberlain street. Funeral services will be held at the Kelly home at 9 o'clock Wednesday morning and at St. Patrick's Catholic church at 9:30, with burial in Oakwood.

Kin of Marshall Field Reported Missing Today

By Associated Press Leased Wire
New York, March 16.—Lyman D. James, a relative of the late Marshall Field of Chicago, and until recently an official of a textile plant at Spry, N. C., is missing. The fact that he had vanished was disclosed when his uncle, Philip Lyman James, New York manager of Marshall Field & Co., went to the police yesterday to deliver his photograph to the bureau of missing persons.

"Fearless" Sam Dreben, Soldier of Fortune, Dead

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Hollywood, Calif., March 16.—"Fearless" Sam Dreben, internationally known for his dare devil deeds on a score of battlefields, American world war hero and soldier of fortune in a dozen revolutions; filibuster with Villa and friend of Pershing, will be buried today.

Dreben, 47, died here yesterday of paralysis. Today the Hollywood American Legion post will take his body to a cemetery in Burbank.

Dreben came to the United States from Russia and joined the United States army. He became a first sergeant of infantry, saw service in the Philippines, in China; and later participated in a revolution in Nicaragua as a free lance.

Mexico knew him as a follower of Madero in the revolution against Diaz, later as a participant in the revolt against Madero and still later as a free lance with Villa. He quit Villa, however, and when General Pershing led his punitive expedition into Mexico after the Columbus raid he went along as a scout.

When the World War broke out Dreben enlisted and in the last big battle of 1918 he won the distinguished service cross; France decorated him with the Croix de Guerre, and Italy also honored him.

BRITAIN LOOKS TO KELLOGG IN ARMAMENT TALK

Will Actively Support Any Move Made by U. S. Officials

By Associated Press Leased Wire
London, March 16.—The British government has not yet been informed by the Washington authorities nor Sir Esme Howard, British ambassador, of the latest suggestion from the White House for a disarmament conference.

It has been expected in official circles, however, that the British government would be forthcoming when Frank B. Kellogg assumed the office of secretary of state, as a result of the conferences which Mr. Kellogg had with Assistant Chamberlain, foreign secretary, before the retiring ambassador left London.

A new proposal, if founded upon this unwritten understanding upon Secretary Kellogg and Mr. Chamberlain will be welcomed by British officials and given their active support, it is declared.

GOVT. GETS HARD BLOW IN TEAPOT DOME CASE TODAY

Fall's Bank Account Is Not Allowed as Evidence by Judge

By The Associated Press—Evidence intended to reveal the secrets of the bank accounts of Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the Interior, was barred from the record in the Teapot Dome lease annulment suit here today.

The ruling, barring the evidence, handed down by Federal Judge Kennedy, deprives the government of its only known means of attempting to prove an exchange of liberty bonds between Fall and Harry E. Sinclair, whose Mammoth Oil Company was given the lease on the big Wyoming oil reserve.

Judge Kennedy in his decision referred to the matter in question as involving something of unusual importance to the plaintiffs case, but that as the matter stands it is manifestly incompetent and will be barred until such time as it is shown to be competent.

Judge Kennedy's ruling left the government's case up in the air so completely that a recess of ten minutes was allowed to permit Owen J. Roberts and Atlee Pomerene, government counsel, to get their remaining witnesses in shape.

After recess Attorney Roberts announced he would reverse the procedure previously followed in an attempt to show the alleged passage of bonds between Sinclair and Fall by tracing the bonds from Sinclair to Fall instead of from the former secretary to the head of the Mammoth Oil Company. The court before had warned Roberts that he was approaching the matter from the "back door."

World-Famous German Pathologist Is Dead

Berlin, March 16.—(By The Associated Press)—Professor Von Wassermann, director of the Kaiser Wilhelm Institute for experimental therapy and professor of internal medicine at the University of Berlin, the originator of the celebrated Wassermann blood test, died today.

Prof. Wassermann, educated at the University of Erlangen, Munich, Strassburg and other institutions, became known as one of the foremost pathologists of Germany and of the world. His best known of his discoveries is the "Wassermann reaction," a test whereby certain chemical reactions of blood samples detect presence of syphilis infection in the patient.

An obituary of Mrs. Hubbard will be published later.

TO DENY WIFE'S CHARGES

By Associated Press Leased Wire
London, March 16.—Lieut. Col. Ian Omslow Dennistoun today took the stand in his own defense against the allegations of his former wife that he encouraged her intimacy with Sir John Cowan, the quartermaster general of the British army, to further his own military ambitions.

Heretofore the defense had not introduced any direct evidence giving the side of the Cowan affair.

Before the defendant was called, Hannah Parker, his former wife's maid, testified that Mrs. Dennistoun told her the night before the marriage of her ex-husband to the Countess of Carnarvon.

"I am glad they are going to be married tomorrow. Now I can put the screws on."

By Associated Press Leased Wire
St. Louis, Mo., March 16.—Police are investigating what they believe may result in the breaking up of an alleged automobile theft ring operating between St. Louis and East St. Louis, Ill., following the arrest of four men and the recovery of several stolen automobiles. The men held are Tony Carmi, 25, a mechanic; James Dwyer, 20, mechanic; William Vornberg, 49, farmer and James Parnon, merchant.

A Story Without Words

NO WORD FROM BOY MISSING FROM HOSPITAL

Officials at the Colony Abandon Dragging Work in River

Dixon state hospital officials today were still without word of Bennie Young, 12-year-old patient who escaped from the institution Wednesday, March 11. The dragging of Rock river along the line of the state property and the placing of lines with hope of recovering the body were fruitless and these methods were abandoned Saturday.

Dr. Warren G. Murray, superintendent, stated today that no word of any kind had been received from the boy, who was a habitual runaway since his disappearance from the ward on the above date. Late Saturday word was received at the institution that a boy answering the description had been seen about a mile west of Sterling. A hurried investigation showed that it was not the missing patient. The institution officials are now anxious awaiting some word which may lead to his location.

Your Mistakes

How much would any of us give for all the material that is wasted every day? It must amount to millions of dollars a day throughout the world. Waste is largely due to carelessness. When we break ourselves of careless habits, we will waste less.

Think also of the words that are wasted in a day's talking, due to carelessness in speaking! So the habit of correct speech—also writing—should be acquired in order to avoid wasting words.

In most instances mispronunciation is due to carelessness. The New Universities Dictionary cites the most common mistakes we make, all in one section, called the "Dictionary of Everyday Errors."

This section offers an opportunity for us to correct our mistakes, many of which through carelessness we are not aware of until our attention is called to them.

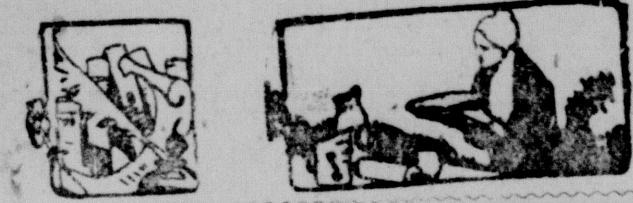

Clip the coupon printed elsewhere in these columns and learn how easy it is to get the new dictionary that shows us how to avoid errors in speaking and writing.

A DAY WORSE THAN LAST—
If you sit down at set of sun and count the acts that you have done.

And counting, find
One self-denying deed, one word that eased the heart of him that heard—
One glance most kind,
That fell like sunshine where it went,
That felt like count that day well spent.

But if through all the livelong day,
You've cheered no heart, by you or ray,
If, through it all,
You've nothing done that you can trace
That brought the sunshine to one face,
No act most small
That helped some soul and nothing cost—
Then count that day as worse than lost.

—George Elliot.

Menus for Family

Tested by C. SISTER MARY.

Breakfast:
Halves of grapefruit, scrambled eggs with rice, graham muffins, milk, coffee.

Luncheon:
Lentil soup, croissants, cottage cheese sandwiches, French cake, canned pears, milk, tea.

Dinner:
Cream of celery soup, escalloped scallops, baked potatoes, beet greens, peach salad, whole wheat bread, lemon sponge, milk, coffee.

There is no cereal planned for breakfast, the rice and graham muffins providing the nutrients found in a dish of cooked wheat cereal. However, more scrambled eggs and rice and muffins must be served than if a cereal were included in the breakfast.

Be sure the muffins are nice and crusty and serve plenty of butter with them.

With the exception of the cake suggested for luncheon which is a bit rich for four-year-olds, these small people can partake of the menus from "soup to nuts," so to speak.

Lentil Soup.

One cup lentils, 1 onion, 1 tablespoon minced parsley, coarse celery leaves, 6 cups water, 1½ cups milk, 2 tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons flour, 1 teaspoon sugar, 2 teaspoons salt, ½ teaspoon pepper.

Wash and pick over lentils. Let stand over night in cold water to cover. In the morning drain. Put cover to a kettle with the water and bring to the boiling point. Simmer until tender, adding water as necessary, keeping about six cups of the lentils. Wash the coarse leaves from a head of celery and mince. Mince onion and parsley. Add vegetables to lentils when about half cooked. Rub lentils through a sieve with out draining. Melt butter, stir in constantly, add milk, stirring constantly. Add soup to thickened milk, season and bring to the boiling point. Cook for five minutes and serve.

French Cake.

One and one-half cup sugar, three eggs, ½ cup butter, 1 cup milk, 3 cups flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon vanilla, ½ teaspoon salt. Cream butter and slowly beat in the sugar. Add ½ cup flour and stir until thoroughly blended. Add yolks of eggs well beaten. Mix well. Mix and sift remaining flour with salt and baking powder and add alternately with milk and vanilla to first mixture. Fold in whites of eggs beaten until stiff and dry. Bake in layers and put together with the following chocolate icing.

Uncooked Chocolate Icing.
One cup confectioner's sugar, one egg, 4 tablespoons melted butter, 2 squares bitter chocolate, ½ teaspoon vanilla.

Beat yolk of egg slightly. Add sifted sugar, melted butter and melted chocolate and beat until creamy. Add vanilla and a few drops of boiling water to make the right consistency to spread.

Entertained for Miss Phillips

The Misses Eleanor Powell and Mary Bolman delightfully entertained on Friday evening at the home of Mrs. Annie Wagner, 216 Second St., in honor of Miss Della Phillips, whose marriage to Fred Bolman is to take place in the near future.

Despite the inclemency of the weather, butterflies and four-leafed clovers ran riot through the spacious rooms of the Wagner home.

The guests began very industriously hemming and monogramming towels for the bride-to-be, then proceeded to sketch the bridegroom "as they saw him." Inasmuch as only small portions of his anatomy could be drawn at one time, the finished product was quite ludicrous. The history of the courtship was told (as best it is known) by those present, and some very startling secrets were divulged, which kept both Miss Phillips and Mr. Bolman guessing how things will lead out—and at the same time kept the mchasing from getting to cellar in an effort to locate certain mysterious packages in out-of-the-way places. The packages were well worth the effort taken to find them.

A light two-course luncheon was served by the hostesses, the centerpiece being a tiny bride beneath a canopy of dainty pink cupids. There were twelve guests.

Voice Opposition to Repeal Primary Law

Springfield.—(By the Associated Press.)—Opposition to the repeal of the direct primary law of Illinois, has been voiced here by Erma Templemen, attorney at law, and state treasurer of the Illinois women's joint legislative committee, and legislative chairman of the Illinois Parent-Teachers association.

Mrs. Templemen declared that it was to the interest of all women interested in good government that the state primary law be preserved.

"The direct primary law of Illinois," she said, has taken away from the political bosses of the various party organizations their power to dictate and to nominate candidates for office through the manipulation of conventions and delegates by means of the spoils system and has placed this power in the hands of the people.

"This primary law should not be repealed but should be so amended as to place more power in the hands of voters."

"This can be done by preventing any candidate from accepting or soliciting funds from any employees for political purposes, by preventing employees (civil service included) from soliciting and contributing to an election fund; by limiting the amount of money spent by a candidate or in his behalf, and by a compulsory election act requiring all qualified voters to register and vote, as provided in Senate Bill 70, introduced by Senator Harry Wilson of Pinckneyville."

"The new and independent voters, especially women should oppose the repeal or any modification of this law to lessen the power of the voters. Women are naturally progressive and independent in voting. Such independence would have no opportunity for expression with the repeal of the direct primary law. Bosses and spoilers would do the nominating and electing of officers."

Beside her official position in the two state organizations, Mrs. Templemen is chairman of the Sangamon county Democratic Women's organization, and legislative chairman for the Springfield Business and Professional women's club.

DIXON SCHOOLS

If there is any one thing that the children of today are rightfully entitled to above all others it is the advantage of good schooling, and in most communities they are having that advantage to a greater extent than they are in Dixon.

We have a good Board of Education, a good Superintendent of Schools, good management of schools and a good corps of teachers. There is ample interest in schools by Dixon people. The Parent-Teachers organizations here are very active. Dixon appears to be wide-awake and alert to progress in school matters. The community is a wealthy and prosperous one.

But we are sadly behind, in spite of all this. In our high school the seating capacity is only a fraction of the number of high school students. Dixon schools are so crowded that pupils cannot possibly get anywhere near 100 per cent efficiency from their studies. Future growth of the city is impeded by this condition and, more important than that, the students in our schools, the future citizens of Dixon, are suffering in their education and are not receiving the proper educational advantages that this present day age entitles them to. We are not giving Dixon children, nor the children from the farming community round about a fair chance in the strenuous competition of life that is before them unless we give them the sort of educational advantages that the children of other communities enjoy.

The Telegraph believes that the time has long been passed where we can afford or have the right to longer delay the march of modern progress in Dixon schools, but what money do we spend or could we spend that would compare in value to the money we put into public schools?

TAKING THE CREAM OFF

The Senate's turning down of the Coolidge nomination of Charles B. Warren to be United States attorney general seems to illustrate the growing tendency to hold against any man the fact that he has been successful in his line of endeavor, or that he has been looked to by private business as an efficient man. The sugar trust, when looking around for an efficient and dependable attorney to conduct its legal affairs, selected Mr. Warren. It was perfectly legitimate and ethical for Mr. Warren to accept the place. But that damned him in the eyes of the democrats of the senate, who were able to get a few republicans to join them in their opposition. Vice President Dawes was absent when the vote was taken. He arrived a few seconds too late to be able to cast his vote, which would have made it a tie. When Reed of Pennsylvania sought to have the vote reconsidered after the arrival of Dawes, democratic senators succeeded in getting Overman of North Carolina—the only democrat to vote for Warren—to change his vote, so Reed's motion to reconsider was lost 39 to 41.

This opposition to successful men for official position takes the cream off the list of eligibles.

GOVERNMENTAL EFFICIENCY

Secretary Mellon reports that in the five years from 1917 to 1922, during which the war was fought and won, and peace was established, and great domestic bond issues were floated and great foreign loans made, and money handled on a scale vast beyond precedent. The United States treasury, under two administrations, retired many billions of securities with a loss of only $13,000. This loss was caused by petty thefts of retired securities from the files. Some mechanical and clerical errors were discovered, he says, but they entailed no losses.

It is doubtful whether any private corporation could make a comparable showing.

It is usual to speak with contempt of the government as a business institution. There has been, admittedly, great waste and loss in some of the governmental departments, during the abnormal unsettlement of war and reconstruction. All the more reason, then, to recognize the conspicuous success of a majority of the government's activities during this period. Uncle Sam, at bottom, is a better business man than he is often given credit for.

The Queen of Belgium has bobbed her hair which is unimportant except to show you that a queen's husband isn't the boss any more than you are.

The Senators possibly feel that it is all right for Vice President Dawes to get down to brass tacks but they do object to being made to sit upon them.

"A skull, half an inch thick and uncarved in Arizona, has been sent to Washington without the formality of an election," says the Detroit News.

Economic inequalities are slowly being evened up. Some college professors now get as much pay as bricklayers.

BY CHESTER H. ROWELL

A magazine writer had made charges of congressional neglect, in regard to the Roma disaster, which the congressional committee declared to be untrue, and therefore indignantly repudiated and rebuked their authority.

"Insatiable scandal about Congress, in the eyes of congressmen, is an outrage."

But the same committee had been listening gleefully to all sorts of canards about single neglect of executive departments, and had given little hearing and less credit to the facts presented by the departments in refutation.

Which illustrates chiefly that nobody is a fair judge in his own rival's case.

What is really needed is some way for both sides to present their cases where the people can judge between them.

Naval officers making the "sensational" admission that we have not enough airplanes to defend the Philippines.

Asked if we have enough of anything else, they frankly say that we have not, and that the islands could be taken by any major foe from their own part of the world—which means, of course, Japan, since there is no other major naval power in the Pacific.

The only surprising thing about this is that any one should have been surprised.

Of course the Philippines are indefensible against Japan. They were already so, before the Washington conference, and one of the results of that conference was an agreement to keep them so.

They are our bet, or our surety, that we mean what we say when we assure the world that we have no aggressive designs against Japan.

The whole purpose of the naval treaty was to make both Japan and the United States invulnerable in defense and powerless for offense.

It is a safety for the Philippines, too. Japan can take them, but only at the cost of a war with America, and eventually with the world, which would ruin Japan.

And Japan knows that we can take no hostile steps for which we are not willing to sacrifice the Philippines.

All this is "old stuff". The only thing new about it is the veridicality of those who have just found it out.

"Hello, here," said Bimbo. "Are you a new act?"

"Yes," said the Circus Manager to the March Hare and the Twins. "It is time for the circus to get ready for spring, so it can go around to the cities and let people see it. Will you please find my clowns for me. Bimbo is the best clown of all. You'd better look for him first."

"We'll go at once," said the March Hare, putting his book away and taking off his glasses. "Come on children, jump on my back and we'll be off."

Away they went to look for Bimbo, the clown.

First they went to the Hippodrome—a great theater in New York where people do all sorts of acts.

"Is Bimbo here?" the March Hare asked the man at the ticket office.

The man was so accustomed to seeing and hearing strange things in a place where people were always doing and saying strange things, that he thought nothing of it when a large hare, larger than any Jack Rabbit he had ever seen, suddenly spoke to him in plain English.

"No, he was here two weeks ago, but he's gone," said the man. "You might try the Million Dollar Theater in Cleveland."

"Thank you," said the March Hare. "Hop on again, children. There is no time to lose, and from New York to Cleveland is quite a step."

Away they went, the three of them, down Broadway until they came to the end of New York. Then they swam a river—a great wide one—as easily as you can slide down a slide or a bath tub. For with so much magic along, one can do anything, really.

And then off they went like the wind again, and after while they reached Cleveland.

And then they went loppity loppity along Euclid avenue until they came to the Million Dollar Theater.

"Is Bimbo the Clown here?" the March Hare asked the ticket man.

"Yes, he's here. He is back in the dressing room now getting ready for his act," said the man.

"Come," said the March Hare and he marched right in and went through a big red velvet room all hung with pictures and crystal lights as though he owned the place.

He pushed open a glass door and walked down the aisle of the theater followed by the Twins.

"Where's Bimbo?" he asked. A man in his shirt sleeves pulling at a rope, looked over his shoulder.

"First dressing room," he answered. "On went the Hare. He was a most determined person, so it is easy to see why the Fairy Queen chose him to help her get things started."

Bimbo was just putting on his white point when his door opened and in walked the March Hare and the Twins.

"Hello, here," said Bimbo. "Are you a new act?"

"No," answered the Hare. "But they will be needing one. You'll have to leave at once and come with me. It's circus time."

"You don't say," cried Bimbo, jumping up and looking at a clock on the wall. "Why so it is."

"Would you rather be there than here?" asked Nancy in surprise.

"Oh, boy! Would I?" cried Bimbo. "You just bet!"

for future favors, they will not repudiate obligations. Not they!

But if America were graciously to remit those debts, that would be different. An old debt forgiven does not preclude later contracting another.

These debts, they explain, cannot be paid. The money is not in sight, and the people, whose consent to taxation would be necessary, do not think they ought to be paid.

But the remission must come from us. They, to save their future credit, still "promise to pay." We, for the same purpose, must take the initiative in requesting them not to keep that promise.

All of which is merely the game of bluff preliminary to finding out, soberly, on the facts, what they can and fairly should pay. We, for the same purpose, must take the initiative in requesting them not to keep that promise.

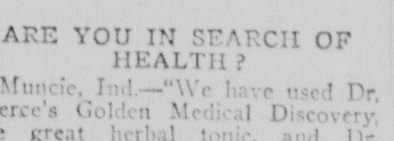

But nobody will trust the word of those who recognize no moral obligation to keep it. Nobody will trust the Chinese government, either. But in China, it is not with government that you do business.

Is Today Your Birth Anniversary?

MONDAY, MARCH 16—Good taste in everything is a characteristic of people born this day. They want and usually get the best in clothes, music, literature and the other arts. They have an aristocratic strain that causes many people to look upon them as snobs, but in reality they are not. They simply abhor the cheap, gaudy and tinsel things of life for other things that are really worth while.

WHAT DID EVE EAT?

By NEA Service

London.—Was the forbidden fruit in the Garden of Eden an apple? No, where does the Bible say it was an apple, and yet from the earliest days of Jewish history, the fruit was referred to as an apple.

In parts of Palestine a tree grows producing a fruit which is supposed to be identical with that eaten by our first parents. The fruit presents a beautiful appearance, but it collapses in the hand on being touched, and its deceptive appearance has caused it to be associated with the Bible story.

In Ceylon is found a tree with the significant name of Kanduru, meaning "forbidden." Its fruit is a bright orange on the outside, with a deep crimson within. The inside of the fruit also has a cavity, which gives it the appearance of having a piece bitten out of it. This and the poisonous nature of the fruit caused Mohammedans to believe it was Eve's fruit.

If you think you do not need a GLOBE Range because you have a "fairly good stove" you have no idea of what a GLOBE Range IS and DOES. It would be genuine economy for you to do away with the old range and buy a GLOBE—for a GLOBE will pay for itself in the fuel it saves.

It is a range like the one you have thought you would like to build.

Whether you need a stove for coal, wood, gas, kerosene or gasoline, you will find at this store just what you want.

BARRE, SON OF KAZAN

by James Oliver Curwood

A LOVE EPIC OF THE FAR NORTH

Copyright, 1917, by Doubleday, Page & Co.

"BARRE, SON OF KAZAN," a Vitaphone Picture, With Wolf, the War Dog, is an Adaptation of This Story

SYNOPSIS

McTaggart, the post trader, finding Barre, the wolf-dog, trapped in one of his game snares, struck him a blow with a stick and carried him to the cabin of Pierrot, the trapper, where he went to demand the hand of Nepeese, the trapper's daughter. The girl recognized Barre and when she saw he had been injured she turned in anger at McTaggart. Barre, freeing himself, fastened his teeth in the factor's leg. McTaggart drew his revolver, but Nepeese raised the dog in her arms.

"Let us leave them to fight it out between themselves, m'sieu," he said. "They are two little firebrands, and we are not safe. If she is bitten—"

He shrugged his shoulders. A great load had been lifted from them suddenly. His voice was soft and persuasive. And now the anger had gone out of the Willow's face. A coquettish uplift of her eyes caught McTaggart, and she looked straight at him half smiling, as she spoke to her father:

"I will join you soon, mon pere, you and M'sieu the Factor from Lac Bain!"

There were undeniable little devils in her eyes. McTaggart thought—little devils laughing full at him as she spoke, setting his brain afire and his blood to running wildly. Those eyes—full of dancing wickets! How he would tame them and play with them—very soon now. He followed Pierrot outside. In his exultation he no longer felt the smart of Barre's teeth.

Half an hour later Nepeese came out of the cabin. She could see that Pierrot and the Factor had been talking about something that had not been pleasant to her father. His face was strained. She caught in his eyes the smoulder of fire which he was trying to smother, as one might smother flames under a blanket. McTaggart's jaws were set, but his eyes flared up with pleasure when he saw her. She knew what it was about. The Factor from Lac Bain had been demanding his answer of Pierrot, and Pierrot had been telling him what she had insisted upon—that he must come to her. And he was coming! She turned with a quick beating of the heart and hurried down a little path. She heard McTaggart's footsteps behind her, and threw the flash of a smile over her shoulder. But her teeth were set tight. The nails of her fingers were cutting into the palms of her hands.

"His arms were about her like hands of iron."

Pierrot stood without moving. He watched them as they disappeared into the forest. Nepeese still a few steps ahead of McTaggart. Out of his breast rose a sharp breath.

"Par les mille cornes du diable! he swore softly. 'Is it possible—that she smiles from her heart at that beast? Non! It is impossible. And yet—if it is so—"

One of his brown hands tightened convulsively about the handle of the knife in his belt, and slowly he began to follow them.

McTaggart did not hurry to overtake Nepeese. She was following the narrow path deeper into the forest, and he was glad of that. They would be alone—away from Pierrot. He was ten steps behind her, and again the Willow smiled at him over her shoulder. Her body moved sinuously and swiftly. She was keeping accurate measurement of the distance between them—but McTaggart did not guess that this was why she looked back every now and then. He was satisfied to let her go on. When she turned from the narrow trail into a side path that scarcely bore the mark of travel, his heart gave an exultant jump. If she kept on, he would very soon have her alone—a good distance from the cabin. The blood ran hot in his face. He did not speak to her, through fear that she would stop. Ahead of them he heard the rumble of water. It was the creek running through the chasm.

Nepeese was making straight for that sound. With a little laugh she started to run, and when—stood at the edge of the chasm. McTaggart was fully fifty yards behind her. Twenty feet sheer down there was a deep pool between the rock walls, a pool so deep that it was like blue ink. She turned to face the Factor from Lac Bain. He had never looked more like a red beast to her. Until this moment she had been unafraid. But now—in an instant—he terrified her. Before she could speak what she had planned to say, he was at her side, and had taken her face between his two great hands, his coarse fingers twining in the slick strands of her thick braids where they fell over her shoulders at the neck.

"Ka sakahet!" he cried passionately. "Pierrot said you would have an answer for me. But I need no answer now. You are mine! Mine!"

She gave a cry. It was a gasping, broken cry. His arms were about her like hands of iron, crushing her slender body, shutting off her breath, turning the world almost black for her. She could neither struggle nor cry out. She felt the hot passion of his lips on her face, heard his voice—and then came a moment's freedom, and air into her strangled lungs. Pierrot was calling! He had come to the fork in the trail, and he was calling the Willow's name!

McTaggart's hot hand came over her mouth.

"Don't answer," she heard him say.

Strength—anger—hatred flared up in her, and fiercely she struck the hand down. Something in her wonderful eyes held McTaggart. They blazed into his very soul.

"Bete noir!" she panted at him, freeing herself from the last touch of his hands. "Beast—black beast!" Her voice trembled, and her face flamed. "See—I came to show you my pool—and tell you what you wanted to hear—and you—you—have crushed me like a beast—like a great rock—See! down there it is my pool!"

She had not planned it like this. She had intended to be smiling, even laughing, at this moment. But McTaggart had spoiled them—her carefully made plans! And yet, as she pointed, the Factor from Lac Bain had looked for an instant over the edge of the chasm. And then she laughed—laughed as she gave him a sudden shove from behind.

"And that is my answer, M'sieu le Facteur from Lac Bain!" she cried tauntingly as he plunged headlong into the deep pool between the rock walls.

CHAPTER XIV

From the edge of the open Pierrot saw what had happened, and he gave a great gasp. He drew back among the balsams. This was not a moment for him to show himself. While his heart drummed like a hammer his face was filled with joy.

On her hands and knees the Willow was peering over the edge. She had gone down like the great clog he was; the water of her pool had closed over him with a dull splash that was like a chuckle of triumph. He appeared now, beating out with his arms and legs to keep himself afloat, while the Willow's voice came to him in taunting cries.

"Bete noir! Bete noir! Beast! Beast!"

She flung small sticks and tufts of earth down at him fiercely; and McTaggart, looking up as he gained his equilibrium, saw her leaning so far over that she seemed about to fall. Her long braids hung down into the chasm, gleaming in the sun; her eyes were laughing while her lips taunted him; he could see the flash of her white teeth.

"Beast! Beast!"

He began swimming, still looking up at her. It was a hundred yards down the slow-going current to the beach of shale where he could climb out, and a half of that distance she followed him, laughing and taunting him, and flinging down sticks and pebbles. He noted that none of the sticks or stones was large enough to hurt him. When at last his feet touched bottom, she was gone.

Swiftly Nepeese ran back over the trail, and almost into Pierrot's arms. She was panting and laughing when for a moment she stopped.

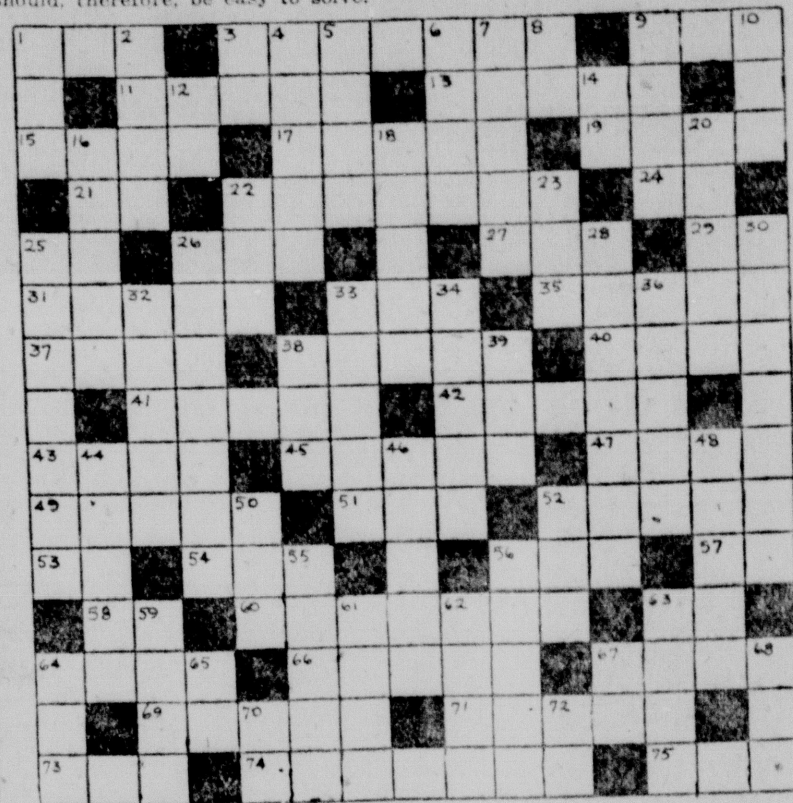

"I have given him the answer, Nootaw! He is in the pool." Nepeese was out of breath when she reached the cabin. Barre, fastened to a table-leg by a halibute thong, heard her pause for a moment at the door. Then she entered and came straight to him. During the half-hour of her absence Barre had scarcely moved.

Her touch thrilled him. It sent little throbs through his body, a tremulous quivering which she could feel and which deepened the glow in her eyes. Gently her hand stroked his head and his back. It seemed to Nepeese that he did not breathe. Under the caress of her hand his eyes closed. In another moment she was talking to him, and the sound of her voice his eyes shot open.

Paw Paw Girl Wins Mention from WLS

Hazel Willard of Paw Paw, received honorable mention in the recent contest conducted among boys and girls in the rural districts by the Inquisitive Broadcaster, Radio Station WLS, Chicago.

The subject of the contest, which was received with enthusiasm by the youngsters, was "I Wrote a Made Money on Poultry in 1924."

Following is Miss Willard's letter: "Last summer I had two settings of Buff Orpington eggs. I hatched 23 and raised 20. 14 pullets and 6 cockerels. I sold the cockerels for $2.20 in the fall, and my pullets are worth $1.50 at market price. Some of them have been laying since the first of February. They were hatched about the first of June."

"We started them out on rolled oats, afterwards feeding ground corn. My mother thinks that one of the most important things for healthy chicks is to get rid of the big head lice, that are most always on them. For this we put them in a basket and gave them a good dusting with Hottel's powder. Then cover the basket over tightly with a cloth and let it stand about ten minutes. When the cloth is removed, if there is any lice on it they will crawl out and drop dead on the bottom of the basket."

Correct Clothes To Meet The Obligation Of Every Occasion

Gloves For Golfers

Runs the olden saying about gloves that Spain dresses the leather; France cuts it; England sews it. We Americans ought at least to shine in the wearing of gloves, for we now make the best of them in the world, but, alas! we pay nothing like the attention to gloves that is so noticeable among well-dressed men in England and upon the Continent. There, they distinguish clearly between different types of gloves and the proper occasions to put them on. We, contrariwise, often go ungloved, not even carrying them. If we do, they are crushed to a pulp in the hand, because, forsooth, it's too much trouble to slip them on and off. Yes, Americans are an open-handed race as far as gloves are concerned. Every place and purpose has its correct glove and to wear gloves is not only a mark of refinement, but a decoration of the male paw, which needs the merciful shelter of a leather envelope.

Capeskin, buckskin, pigskin and chamois gloves are for street and sport. Mochas and surdes are for afternoon dress. Chrometanned leathers, washable leathers, horsehides and deer-skins are for knockabout and roughing it. Gloves to accompany formal and semi-formal evening dress should fit snugly, though not tightly. Gloves worn in town, afield and a-mount should be roomy and finger-free.

Riding and automobile gloves have undergone a change. The old heavy, clumsy types have been dropped in favor of styles which leave the hand spry and supple. Special sorts of golf gloves are not as much worn in this country as abroad, because, unlike the foreigner who keeps his coat on, we take ours off or substitute the convenient sweater or knitted waistcoat, and we haven't learned how to wear sporting gloves and feel comfortable in them. We prefer a bare-knuckled grip on the golf club.

However, golf gloves are gaining in favor and one of the preferred types is shown here. It is of soft chamois with open knuckles for greater flexibility and with the palm of the left hand reinforced with sturdy caeskin. The decorations are three, miniature golf sticks. Such a glove is alike smart and serviceable and a distinct addition to the golfer's kit.

PEACH CROP RUINED
Calro, Ill. Mar. 14.—If the temperature drops to 15 degrees tonight as predicted by the local weather bureau, there is little hope for the peach crop of Alexander, Union and Pulaski counties in the older orchards.

E. A. Riboud, Pulaski county farm advisor, stated at Mount City today. The younger trees should be able to escape total damage with a temperature, he added.

In the event the thermometer does not fall below 20 degrees, much of the crop will ride out the cold wave, Mr. Riboud said.

The SKELETON FINGER

by Headdon Hall

© 1925 by NEA Service Inc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

SIR DUDLEY GLENISTER, suspected of the murder of a cousin to obtain his title and estate, when a crowd drops a SKELETON FINGER into a picnic crowd, consents to a search of the lands, but—

RATHLEEN GLENISTER, sister of the missing man, and Norman Slater, her lover, fear Sir Dudley will attempt to dispose of the hidden body to foil the searchers, so they shadow him, and in the woods they meet up with—

THE RIGHT HONORABLE STEPHEN COLNE, former British cabinet minister.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"Thought I was a poacher?" he laughed mirthlessly. "Very natural. No, I am not setting snares for rabbits. Miss Glenister."

The emphasis on the harmless animal he named was as good as a plain hint that he was setting snares for something else. Kathleen was tempted thereby to greater frankness.

"We are not exactly setting snares," she said. "Hunting would be a better word for it. Captain Slater and I agreed that an attempt might be made tonight to remove, or more effectually hide, my brother's body, and so forestall the official and unofficial search which will, I suppose, begin tomorrow."

"You are still convinced, Miss Glenister, that the finger was your brother's?"

"I am absolutely certain of it," Mrs. Stephen Colne sighed.

"I, too, am of the same opinion," he admitted. "I will confess that my reason for this nocturnal prowling is on all fours with your own. You will forgive me for saying that I think that you have defeated our common objective."

"How?" cried Kathleen.

"Well," proceeded the cabinet minister, "while I was keeping my lone vigil just now I heard someone advancing along the path from the Grange. The footsteps had nearly reached the glade when more distant sounds from the same direction assailed my ears, doubtless caused by yourselves. The first comer must have heard them, too, for he never arrived in the open, the natural deduction being that he broke away from the path into the wood. He has probably abandoned his enterprise, whatever it was, and I at any rate shall abandon mine."

"We had better chuck it, too," said Norman quickly. "Sorry to have spoilt your sport, sir."

Mr. Colne's laugh was friendly and tolerant. "Don't blame yourselves," he replied. "Keen as you both were in a good cause, you had not so much at stake to inspire caution as the individual in front of you. If the police take the matter up we amateurs would be wiser to leave it to them."

"The police have taken it up," said Kathleen. "The sergeant called at the Grange this evening and took the finger and ring away."

"Really? That was smart for a provincial officer. He must have cottage on Adams avenue formerly occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Hanna. Mr. and Mrs. Fred Washburn will move into the house as soon as the remodeling is finished.

The L. O. O. F. lodge entertained about 40 Bohemians and friends Monday with a card party in their hall. Mrs. Nels Jensen was the winner of the first prize in the progressive five hundred game and Jack Wolcott was awarded the consolation prize. Refreshments of sandwiches, pickles, olives, cake and coffee were served by the men.

Bruges, Belgium, was the center of the world's trade in the twelfth century.

PROFITABLE ERROR
Adelaide, Australia—A business house here recently made an unexpected profit of nearly $20,000 from the error of a clerk. He sent a telegram to a prospective purchaser quoting a price higher than the correct figure on a large shipment of goods. The purchaser promptly accepted it, and the clerk hadn't lost his job.

acted promptly on the rumors that are lying about. Well, good night, Miss Glenister. Good night, Captain Slater."

With which Mr. Stephen Colne moved off in the direction of Colnebrook Towers. Norman and Kathleen started homeward, not wholly disappointed with the result of their excursion.

Their immediate concern was how to get back into the house and regain their bedrooms without their expedition becoming known to their host.

Emerging from the covert into the open park, they were partly reassured by seeing no human figure on the wide expanse ahead, though Norman's military anxiety for his rear administered a prompt corrective.

"Perhaps the blighter is behind us," he whispered.

"Don't!" was Kathleen's shudder.

"Nearly everybody seems to be wandering about tonight," Kathleen laughed.

The nerve specialist had risen from his seat and come to the door of the summer-house.

"You must not let your disappointment make you cross, Miss Glenister," he said pleasantly. "It is not my fault that the object of your moonlit stroll has proved elusive. Don't let that worry you, my dear young lady, for to use a coarse colloquialism, you have been barking up the wrong tree."

He struck across the lawn towards the mansion, but Kathleen, keeping pace with him, was determined that he should be more explicit.

"You seem to be pretty sure of the reason for our stroll, Doctor Melville," she said. "I wonder if you have hit on the right one."

"I seldom make mistakes in reading the human mind," was the reply. Doctor Melville had shepherded them to one of the French windows of the dining-room, which proved to be unfastened.

"Pray take advantage of my provision for my own return," he said, standing aside for the wanderers to enter and following them in. "I must leave you to your own devices in gaining your own rooms, but I should advise caution."

CHAPTER V
In the Chalk Pit

AN iron-gray man of sixty, ruddy from the weather and mighty of limb, John Grimes, listened respectfully to his master's orders. The head gamekeeper had come up to the Grange after breakfast and was now being interviewed in the library.

"I quite understand, Sir Dudley," he said when his employer came to a full stop. "I am to collect the beaters and farm hands and go over every inch of ground on the estate. I will guarantee that if we don't find a body there won't be one there to find."

GREAT LOVE STORY OF TWO UNKNOWN AMERICANS

Agon Couple Separated From Each Other Only Two Weeks in 75 Years of Married Life

BY HORTENSE SAUNDERS
NEA Service Writer

Wyckoff, N. J.—Seventy-five years ago, John Demarest, 22, and Susan Winter, 17, rode horseback over a hill trail to the parsonage 12 miles away and promised to love, honor—and the rest of it as long as they lived.

Then these two literally settled down to make a home. He chopped down the trees from which the lumber was cut that was transformed into chairs and tables for the tiny home. She raised the fax that was spun into linen, and the sheep that gave up their coats for the family clothes.

Today, after three-quarters of a century together, they emphatically say they are still in love and that they look forward with pleasure to more years together, even though John's hands that once worked so deftly are swelled with rheumatism and her eyes aren't so dangerously twinkly as they were in the days when he won her from the gallants of northern New Jersey.

Assembling a Home
"Full at the same end of the rope," is their motto for happiness. "Don't hold grudges. Quarrel if you must, but settle issues as you go along. Don't nag, don't moan, don't expect business or pleasure, and don't expect from others the perfection you lack yourself."

"Don't construct your home on a factory basis," John, now 97, advises young married couples. "A home can't be built like a Ford car. It can't be built in a day. It is the result of love, sacrifice and forbearance. But when you own one on a firm foundation, it is worth everything you put into it a hundred times over."

"I never had a ready-made dress in my life," Mrs. Demarest interrupted.

Then she added with a smile as she touched her black calico dress with the white polka dots—"They don't make this kind of factories. I've always made my own clothes. I've never had more than a dozen jars of fruit or vegetables that I didn't can myself. I've never patronized a dressmaker shop or a beauty parlor. Everything for myself and John and my four children has been a privilege for me to do myself. I couldn't give it over to strangers."

"We've spent our evenings at home except for an occasional neighborhood gathering. John would read as I patched and sewed. We have worked out all the problems of our 75 years together in our evening talks. We have never been separated but two weeks—when John was called away by the illness of a sister and the children were too little for me to take away."

With the exception of occasional trips to New York City, which is about an hour and a half away from here, Mrs. Demarest has never been out of New Jersey.

He Washes the Dishes
"Our life has been happy, rather than exciting—here the husband took up the narrative. "We didn't have much to start with, but we did not run into the temptations of people who have too much. That is what ails so many people today. They have nothing to wish for, which is worse than wishing for everything."

The old tenet of "early to bed and early to rise" has been followed by this couple. Usually they are in bed by eight and up by six at the very latest.

"Surely I get John's breakfast," answered Mrs. Demarest with just the slightest hint of resentment at

In Love 75 Years

JOHN AND SUSAN DEMAREST, WHO HAVE JUST CELEBRATED THEIR DIAMOND WEDDING ANNIVERSARY.

the question. "I've done it for 75 years and shall continue to do so as long as I can get around."

"Once our duties were sharply divided. John's were outside the home, mine were inside. Now we are on a 50-50 basis. John helps me prepare the food and wash to dishes, since he does no outside work any more."

"It's just as well," she concluded with a wise nod. "No man is too old to be harmed by idleness. To keep a husband out of mischief, keep him busy."

40% more heating with the COLONIAL dome

YOU will always be grateful to the dealer who sold you a COLONIAL furnace, whether it be us or some other firm.

You will always be proud to point to this heating plant in your basement, and the record it will make for added warmth from your fuel.

You will be enthusiastic about the Dome Heat Intensifier and you will want your friends to know about its performance. For it increases the heating capacity 40%.

This improved heat chamber is a large dome with double the usual heating area and no outlet at the top. The walls which slope over the firebed heat quickly because the flame and heated gas come more readily in contact with them. The developed warmth does not at once escape upward to the chimney. The dome holds the gases until the heat is transferred to the chamber walls and thence to the heat pipes.

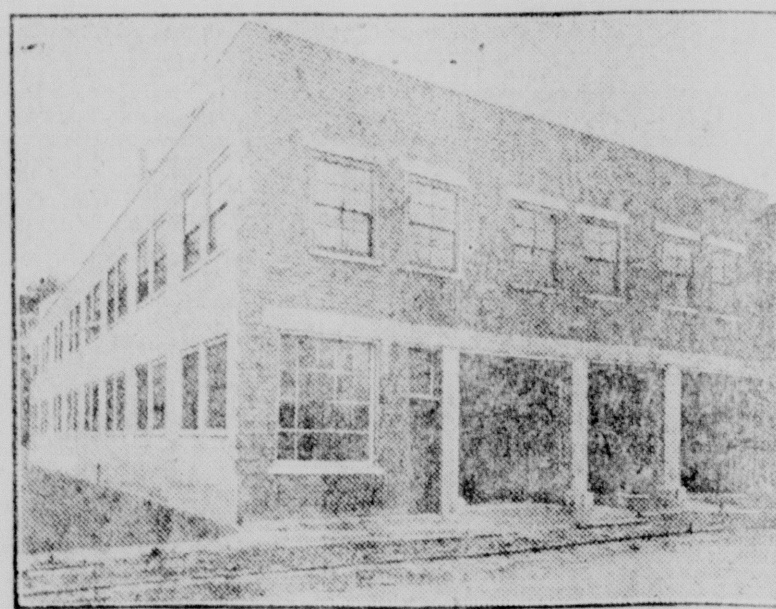

That's ONE reason of many why you'll want a COLONIAL. Phone us today for an estimate on having one installed for you.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist, Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga. (Adv.)
